ARMS CONFERENCE VITAL TO EVERY HOME IN WORLD

VITAL ISSUES WILL BE THRESHED OVER AT WASHINGTON.

EKES OUT TREATY

Nations Now Will Start Out on Mission of Healing War Scars.

This is the first of a series of six articles on the disarmament conference at Washington, written for the Gazette by David Lawrence. The second will appear Tuesday. When you have read these articles you will have received a thorough understanding of just what confronts the conference in the settlement of the greatest of questions before the civilized world.

Washington.—To the average man or woman thinking about the winter's coal bill or household affairs, the big conference in Washington next week may seem to have an impression of thought, academic and far ahead—something for the "high-brows" in Washington to worry over.

But the conference is the biggest thing that has happened since the war. It touches every family not only in the United States but throughout the world. It is a "war" official meeting. The Conference on Limitation of Armament and discussion of Far Eastern and Pacific Problems".

But its real purpose, its real job isn't expressed by those words at all. Indeed, what does "Far Eastern problems" mean? Who except the experts follow the details of commercial intrigue in the Far East? What does "limitation of armament" mean? If you could say

"spending of expenditure," but talk to a naval expert and he will tell you it means keeping practically the same size of navy that each nation has now without additional ships and the first thing you know you are in the midst of technical discussion in which it is pointed out that the dismemberment is inevitable because a certain amount of armament is needed for domestic safety and that "reduction of armament" means two distinct things as will be explained hereafter.

There's also an inside story of how the conference came to be called. It throws a good deal of light on what's going to happen. This will be told in another dispatch.

Would Continue Work.

The Paris conference merely drew up a treaty to end the war. It couldn't possibly do everything. The whole social and economic fabric of countries both neutral and belligerent had been torn to pieces. What Paris failed to do toward reconstruction of the world, the Washington conference will attempt. The viewpoint at Paris was to get peace established quickly. The sense of haste has disappeared. All the nations meet now in a calmer and more quiet

Great Exposition Opens with Crowd of 2,500 in Hall

MONDAY'S PROGRAM

Hallowe'en dancing at night. Art exhibits in Hallowe'en atvite. Music by musical exhibits. Musical concert at night in entertainment hall on second floor. Reduced fares on railroads in effect.

Far superior to anything anticipated the Southern Wisconsin Industrial and Commercial exposition opened at the Samson building on East Milwaukee street, Saturday. It will continue day and night until Sunday, Nov. 7. The gates will open at 9 a. m. each day from now until the last day.

According to an official estimate, 2,500 people passed through the main entrance after the noon hour on the first day. Of these, 1,395 were paid admissions from 5 until 10:30 p. m. The balance included 500 passes held by exhibitors and hundreds who went in on the building Saturday afternoon when the exposition was free to the public.

Opening of the official opening addressed Saturday, Mayor Thomas E. Welsh declared that the splendid showing of enterprise marking the exposition should imbue all Janesville people to strengthen their "Boost Janesville" spirit. He stressed that the exhibits prove Janesville's excellent position in the industrial world and stated that the products made here, which go to all parts of the world, are backed by local men with local capital.

Be Boosters, Mayor's Plea.

"We have so many wonderful advantages in Janesville, that our people sometimes do not appreciate them," the mayor said. "Just let them," he said, "see the bright spot under present business conditions—foremost among all others. We have very little unemployment here. During the business depression, very few of the local plants have shut down. You will see an improvement in business conditions here every month. There is no motive here for pessimism. The city has made rapid strides in the past two years and as

LEGISLATION FOR ULSTER AID, HINT OF LLOYD GEORGE

POSITION OF BELFAST PARLIAMENT HELD "IN-### TOLERABLE."

ANSWERS CRITICS

Premier Faces Unionist Censure Motion on Irish

Policy.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

London.—Possible legislation to put the Ulster parliament in a better position was indicated by Premier Lloyd George Monday in the house of commons, in answering critics in the debate on the unionist motion intended as a censure of the government's Irish policy.

The premier said the position of the Ulster parliament was intolerable and unless something happened in the next few days to put the position right under the government of Ireland act, a short bill would be introduced to remedy the position.

As to the Irish negotiations, the premier assured the house that no agreement was possible without the sanction of the imperial parliament.

Mr. Lloyd George said he had received guarantees that no arms would be imported into Ireland during the truce.

"I cannot conceal from the house," said the premier in alluding to the effort at an Irish settlement, "the possibility that I may have to make the grim announcement that it is impossible to settle without danger and dishonor."

He said that if the conference broke down, the first thing the government would have to do would be to strengthen the forces of the crown.

REFORMS ADVISED IN VETERANS' AID

Senate Committee Would Cancel Contracts With Many Hotels.

By ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington.—Cancellation by the veterans' bureau of all contracts with state, municipal and private hospitals not established prior to July 1, 1917, and with all others found "unsatisfactory" was included among administrative reforms recommended by the special senate committee investigating the subject in a report published Monday.

Declaring the need of hospital construction was unquestioned, the committee recommended an appropriation of $16,400,000 for this purpose, and in addition that all government hospitals, including soldiers' homes, not needed by the army or navy, be turned over to the veterans bureau.

Bazian is said to have been suffered from insomnia.

"Fails in Results."

Asserting the government had failed to obtain "results commensurate with the large expenditures," in rehabilitation work, the committee reported with "deep regret" the "melancholy fact" that out of a total of 256,000 approved applicants for vocational training up to last July 1, only 5,651 have been rehabilitated, building up to that date. Of the 256,000 eligible for training without pay who have not entered training the committee found that a "vast majority" had not done so because of their inability to support themselves without pay.

The chief recommendation of the committee in the vocational phase of the work was standardization of training courses while permitting the applicant to select as far as possible his own vocation.

Moscow.—Paper money totaling 5,750,000,000 rubles has been issued by the Soviet government, the latest output being 750,000,000 rubles for opening of the national bank. The city soviet has permitted newspapers to publish advertisement which have been absent from their columns for four years.

If you are willing to do, that kind of work you can find plenty of it by telling the whole city through a classified ad in the Gazette. By ordering your ad to 26 consecutive insertions you can save nearly half of the usual rate.

Green Bay.—Search for Arthur C. Beaton, missing vice president of the State Bank of Luxembourg, who disappeared last Thursday, is continuing Monday, although without apparent results.

Bloodhounds Saturday picked up a trail which led to the railroad tracks where it was lost. It was learned that a string of eight cars was passing through and it is believed that Beaton may have concealed himself in one of the box cars.

Bazian is said to have been suffering from insomnia.

DUST BOARDER COW BY TEST PROGRAM

Rock Prairie Cow Testing Association to be Divided.

The Rock Prairie cow testing association, under the management of W. J. McKeo, has had great success, the members receiving many benefits from the testing organization.

The boarder cows, which we have not been paying for their feed, have all been disposed of by the association. Every herd in the association is headed by a pure-bred sire. The members know exactly how much milk and butterfat each cow produced last year. They also know the cost of producing milk. They know what their milk should test at the factory and they generally get a better test than the ordinary farmer who does not belong to the association.

When it comes to selling surplus stock, the member of the cow testing association has found that by being able to show the buyer what the animal has done he can get from $25 to $30 more a head.

The Rock Prairie cow testing association covers too much territory and it is to be divided into two sections. One headquarters will be at Clinton and the headquarters of the other will be at Janesville. Mr. McKeo will continue as tester for the Clinton association and another committee may well be secured for the Janesville association.

The farmers in the vicinity of Evansville and Footville are anxious to form a cow testing association. They realize the benefits to be derived and have called on the county agent to help them organize. Any farmer who is interested in getting into the association any place in the country should write to the county agricultural agent so that he will be able to enroll him in the proposed cow testing association.

ARMS CONFERENCE VITAL TO EVERY HOME IN THE WORLD

atmosphere. The meeting was called to limit armament and talk over Far Eastern questions but the mission of the Washington conference is one of healing. It is to be a conference of reconstruction out of which should come not merely an understanding as to the size of armaments but also better spir-its toward the preservation of peace, and a readjustment of financial burdens so that world trade may be revived and wheels of industry may hum once more.

For no matter what may happen, the problems under which the world is struggling seem to have a definite relationship to each other. France resents the talk that she is maintaining a large standing army merely because of her position on the Rhine, while Britain is on edge. She says she keeps that army because nobody else will offer an army to protect her against a German invasion. But the Germans are disarmed, you will say. To that France answers: Germany has not yet paid her war bill. As the man on the street in France and he will remind you of the millions that are dead and the millions that live on, mainly crippled, and he will ask, "What plan is to be implemented against invasion or what your idea is of how the German shall be forced to pay his bill?"

British Loves Navy.

Turn over to England. The man on the street there knows the British fleet saved him from death. Except for that fleet the food supply of England would have gone to the bottom at the whim of the submarine. Twice in a century, the fleet has saved the Briton. He hates to part with it, and will not lightly agree to stop building.

They look at Japan. Millions and millions of people squashed together for islands struggling for an outlet. They look toward China with its wealthy resources. Who shall stand in the way of their development? But the big powers—the United States, Great Britain, Italy, France and the rest—refuse to allow China to be despoiled. The overseas trade of each country can not be jeopardized by leaving Japan a major power in the Far East.

The man on the street in Great Britain, France and Japan makes public opinion. Collectively they power talks. Would the man on the street in the United States go to war with Japan to save China? President Roosevelt once told the German Ambassador he didn't think so. The Far East is too far away. But why should America enter the Far Eastern alliance? All Far Eastern problems heretofore have been settled by a coalition of powers—not so formal as an alliance but an effective combination of countries having vital interests to protect.

Rules for Behavior.

The object of the coming conference, therefore, is to draw up rules and regulations for the behavior of all nations in the Far East—an effort to establish equality of commercial opportunity. Indeed, it goes deeper than that. Sources of friction must be removed, otherwise there'll be a war in the Far East in the next decade. And America has got to be in now, or she can be drawn into a maelstrom from which at first she seemed to be thousands of miles distant.

But aside from Far Eastern questions, comes a larger matter—bring the nations of Europe and America into some kind of an understanding about the future. Shall the reparations question be allowed to drift? France resents the British armament, but she wants America to force Europe to pay back the ten billion dollars lent during the war. It can't be paid until Germany begins paying England and France. The United States has a material interest in seeing Germany make good her pledges.

The Heavens in November

Venus, Jupiter, Mars and Saturn. All Morning Stars This Month, Present a Brilliant Spectacle—Mystery of the Far-Distant Planets Uranus and Neptune.

BY DR. G. S. BRAININ,
OF THE COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY OBSERVATORY STAFF.

Anyone who will take the trouble to arise before sunrise on one of the early days of this month will be most liberally rewarded by the sight with which the eastern sky will greet the intrepid astronomer. Venus, Jupiter, Mars and Saturn, the entire quartet of brighter planets, are morning stars this month, and in the early part particularly will be found fairly close together in the sky, placed one after another along the ecliptic circle. The order from the horizon upward, as given above, Venus is, of course, the brightest, with Jupiter next in brilliancy, as well as in position.

A little below Venus will be found a brilliant, white, first-magnitude star, Spica in Virgo, the Virgin. Ceres, Goddess of the Harvest, though of the first magnitude, Spica is not nearly so bright as Venus or Jupiter. It will be of help in distinguishing the planets from so-called "fixed" stars if we recall that the former do not twinkle except under unusual atmospheric conditions.

Mercury, too, will be a morning star this month and may perhaps be observed for a week or ten days preceding and following the sixteenth.

As a result of this congregation of planets in the eastern morning sky our map is left with only one planet's position to show, that of Uranus. The outermost planet of the system, Neptune, rises after map time.

Uranus and Neptune.

The ancient astronomer knew nothing of the existence of these planets beyond the orbit of Saturn. They were discovered by the lack of optical instruments. These instruments are indeed the real reason for the giant strides made by the science of astronomy and all other sciences in modern times; for it must be conceded that the ancient scientists, though fewer in number, were not a whit less keen than their modern brethren. Their astronomers had instruments with which they made measurements of positions and with peersight only, and they could not see anything beyond the reach of the human eye.

Uranus is barely visible under very good circumstances of observation.

Assuming the good faith of Germany, she will not be restored by a policy of starvation and strangulation. England told France that only to arouse the ire of the French. If this America stands close to the British view. You can't make a man stagger under a load carry it better by whipping him too.

U.S. Would Help.

The United States wants to help. Warren Wilson proposed one formula for islands struggling for an outlet. They look toward China with its wealthy resources. Who shall stand in the way of their development? But the big powers—the United States, Great Britain, Italy, France and the rest—refuse to allow China to be despoiled. The overseas trade of each country can not be jeopardized by leaving Japan a major power in the Far East.

The man on the street in Great Britain, France and Japan makes public opinion. Collectively they power talks. Would the man on the street in the United States go to war with Japan to save China? ## AIL FOR VETS IS GOAL, LEGION TOLD President Wants Nothing More Than to Help Heroes, Says Coolidge.

[By Associated Press.]

Kansas City.—Nothing is closer to the heart of President Harding than to make the relief for incapacitated veterans as complete as man not in the service himself. He has a deeper appreciation of what that service meant of the sacrifices made by the veterans, of the obligations incurred by the country and no man will go further to minister to the true welfare of those who have been in the service and their dependents, than the president of the United States. Vice President Coolidge told the National convention of the American Legion here.

"He will never sacrifice you for his own welfare. He will sacrifice himself for your welfare. He will do all that can be done to prevent the need of your again sacrificing yourself for your country's welfare," Vice Coolidge said.

Urge Tax Reduction.

The vice president reviewed what has been done so far toward relieving the incapacitated veterans; paid high tribute to the valor of America's armed forces and declared the legion represented a "new national consciousness."

He said, every relief must be sought and applied to the taxation situation, sketched the country's financial obligations and added that he knew of no present service that could be performed, for those who served the nation, more important than to reduce "the great drain on the resources of the people." Such a reduction, he said, would bring about a return to permanent prosperity.

He made a plea against sectionalism, which he said had been largely wiped out by the fusing forces of war and predicted a great future in the nation's life for the American Legion.

New Consciousness.

"The opportunity to make this nation one, the sacrifice which made this nation, the one was not of your day alone," he said. "All the streams of that great spirit are gathered upon you. You represent a new national consciousness. You represent the consummation of those great forces coming into action in the early days of this century which not only made America, more American, but made humanity more humane. The hope of this nation which more than ever before corresponds to the hopes of the world, lies in your power to minister to that spirit, to preserve that consciousness and to increase those forces."

The work of Washington was not completed at Yorktown; the work of Lincoln was not completed at Appomattox. They live in our institutions—one in the constitution, which his efforts caused to be adopted, the other in the amendments to it; but no such planet was upon the earth or in the air or on the battlefields of France.

Hopes for Success.

"In recognition of the solemn obligation to you and your countrymen to economy and peace, a conference of certain great powers called on the initiative of our president is about to be held in Washington. It proposes to search for a solution of problems arising from the convergence of many different nations in the Pacific and to provide by mutual agreement, limitation of armament. It proposes something America can do right. It imposes no burden. It provides for a better understanding abroad and better understanding abroad. What it can be accomplished its blessings will be reflected from every fireside in the land."

Because of Neptune.

Numerous and extremely careful observations of the movement of Uranus were immediately made all over Europe and it was soon discovered that its position did not quite fit any orbit which could be worked out for it from previous observations. It was certainly a planet, but it appeared to run contrary to the Newtonian law of gravitation, thought which no astronomer could entertain. Another planet, still more remote than Uranus, could have such a disturbing effect upon it; but no such planet was all alone.

Reading their calculations on this possibility, two men independently worked out the probable position of a disturbing planet, if such existed. One was an Englishman, Adams by name, and the other a Frenchman, Leverrier. Adams sent his results to the Astronomer Royal at Greenwich, with the request that he search for the unknown, but nothing was done.

Leverrier sent his results to the Paris Observatory, the date was 1846. Galle took the matter up with enthusiasm, acted upon it the very first night and found the new planet within a short distance of the predicted position. Had Alry, the Greenwich astronomer, acted on Adam's request, he, too, could have found Neptune, for the former's calculations were all correct. Both men share the honor and there is honor enough for both.

Because of Neptune's and Uranus' great distances from us, very little is known about their dimensions and orbital data, though Neptune has one satellite about as big as our moon, discovered in 1846. Uranus is possessed of four satellites, two discovered by Herschel himself and two by Lassel, who found the single one of Neptune. All these five satellites revolve about the planet in the opposite direction, i.e., in the same direction as the hands of the clock, which is contrary to the direction of orbital revolution of all the planets and all other satellites, save only several of the outer moons of Saturn and Jupiter.

Of the physical condition of Neptune and Uranus, very little is known. Their great distance from the sun means that the heat received from the sun is about 1/20th and 1/30th, respectively, of that received by the earth. From this it is calculated that, outside of any heat from within the planets themselves, the surface temperature would be several hundred degrees Fahrenheit below zero. No doubt they have not yet arrived at the advanced stage of evolution of planets like the earth and Mars, but they must be, because of their greater size, considerably advanced over the two giant planets, Saturn and Jupiter.

Buy Transportation Value Now

There are three factors you must consider in buying motor trucks. First; the work for which the truck is to be used. Second; the first cost of the truck. Third; the operating expense.

Samson trucks are built in two sizes—a light truck for rapid hauling and delivery service—not too small for bulky loads and not too large for small quick trips, and a large truck for heavy hauling service. No matter what your business, one of these Samson trucks will fit into your transportation requirements.

Samson trucks represent more real value for the money invested than you can find in any other truck on the market today. Only tremendous manufacturing facilities in modern plants fitted with the latest labor-saving machinery and enormous manufacturing resources make these prices possible.

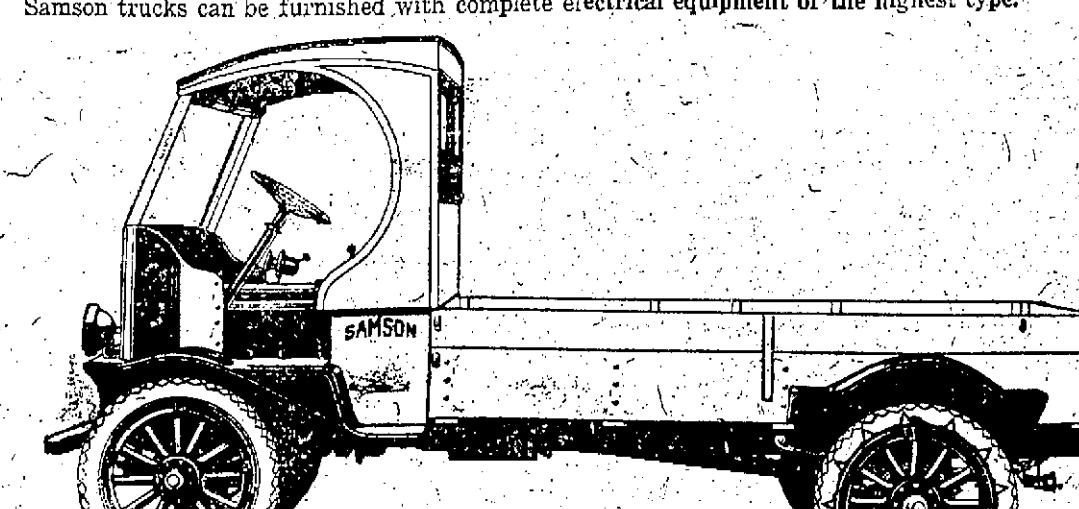

The driver's seat is located well forward so that the weight of the truck and load are evenly distributed on both front and rear wheels. Excessive wear and strain on any one set of parts is thereby eliminated. The same size pneumatic tires used on all wheels gives the greatest possible mileage on each casing.

A comparison of Samson trucks in points of construction, in original cost, in operating cost and in fitness for your work, will convince you of Samson's superiority.

You can pay for Samson trucks while you are using them.

Many Hurt as Madison Loses

Fourteen addresses in the interest of dry law enforcement will be made in Janesville and vicinity this week by Rev. Joe F. Kramer, Washington, D. C., former federal prohibition commissioner, who is on a 43-day tour of Wisconsin speaking at conferences, mass meetings and county conventions. Sermons on this subject were given in several churches here, Sunday.

Mr. Kramer will be in this city, Thursday, for a organization meeting at 2 p. m., and a mass meeting at 8 p. m., to which all those interested in law enforcement are invited. The meetings will be in the Methodist church.

Edgerton, Beloit, Milton, Albany, Monroe, Brodhead, and Stoughton will also be visited this week by Mr. Kramer.

He comes as a Democrat urging the people to support and cooperate with the Republicans who succeeded him when political fortune turned.

This Week's Schedule.

Follering is his schedule for this week in Rock, Green and Dane counties:

Monday, Oct. 31—Luncheon at Deerfield, organization meeting at Christ Presbyterian church, Madison, 2 p. m.; Night mass meeting, university gymnasium.

Tuesday—Noon luncheon at Edgerton; Library hall, Mass meeting at night in Stoughton auditorium.

Wednesday—Luncheon at Alberg's opera house; organization meeting at Monroe Evangelical church, 2 p. m.; and mass meeting at Monroe, Turner hall, 8 p. m.

Thursday—Luncheon at Milton Seventh Day Baptist church, organization meeting at Janesville First M. E. church, 8 p. m.

Friday—Luncheon at Brodhead Congregational church; organization meeting at Beloit, First Congregational church, 8 p. m.; and mass meeting at Beloit, Congregational church, 8 p. m.

Prohibition Sermons Given.

In response to the "Not Over" campaign put on by the prohibition forces to focus public attention on the now discontinued effort several Methodist ministers discussed the matter from their pulpits Sunday.

"Wisconsin is the keystone state in law enforcement" said Rev. J. A. Melrose at the morning service at the Presbyterian church. "If this state would take a strong stand for carrying out the prohibition law the other states would follow suit."

"The liquor men," he said, "represented by 30 definite organizations, have changed their point of attack, and are seeming to acquiesce in the 18th amendment are concentrating their efforts on nullification by means of interpretations of the Volstead law. Appeal is being made by insidious propaganda to divide groups of people to keep wet congressmen to the Senate next year so as to allow wine and beer. This will practically nullify the amendment as nine-tenths of the liquor traffic of the country was in wine and beer."

Sound in Theory.

"We must keep the minds of the whole people on the subject," continued Rev. Mr. Melrose. "Prohibition is sound in theory. The result of the same political assumptions of social welfare that the social control through law rules. It has proven it is as social policy invaluable.

Our whole problem is to get increasing morale in enforcement. Our clear duty is to give it honest enforcement. If we enforce it we will force upon the nations of the world the issue of a sober world and a sober world will not long pay over 90 per cent of its taxes for armaments."

"We must not nullify the constitution by an amendment. We must not elect a congress that will do this shameful thing. The liquor traffic must be stopped and we amended the constitution. If prohibition proves a failure we can change the constitution. That will be easy enough. Meantime we must give it a chance. Wisconsin is one of the key states and we must stand up to have slipped from 4 wet and 5 wet in congress to 6 wet and 5 dry.

We must stop sacking an enforcing the law of the land and support a program of enforcement informed interest."

Powerful Interests Working.

The army and navy groups, the centralized wealth, and other organizations are all being worked upon by the liquor forces, he said, chiefly that the tax raised might be used for their special needs. He emphasized that Christian people must stand by the American constitution as never before, and work to give law enforcement a fair chance.

"If he said, 'after an honest trial for several years it proves a failure then the law can be repealed in no way by a constitutional amendment and not by the underhand way of evasion of its principles.'

Rev. Mr. Lewis speaking at the evening service at the Methodist church on "Shall King Alcohol be Entroned?" declared it a sophistry put forward by the liquor interests that beer and light wines are not harmful.

"It has been the brewery and not the distillery which has controlled politics and when worked have in the past declared. 'Alcohol is a poison, and dilute it as you will in beer or wine, or drink it with meals as they do abroad, it is yet harmful to the system.' A special musical number entitled 'Gut We Stop the Brewing,' was sung by the men's chorus.

At the Baptist church, the congregation voted unanimously to send letters to President Harding and the Wisconsin congressmen, favoring the new law now pending against the use of beer as a medicine. The theme of the sermon was "Jesus and the Social Problems," and mention was made of prohibition in this connection.

ARE IN HELL NOW SAYS SCRIBNER

Pastor Scores Those Who Opposed Aid to German Children.

"These men who wrote articles against sending aid to the children in Germany—are they there already?" declared Rev. Frank J. Scribner, pastor of the First Congregational church, Sunday morning, "I hung my head in shame as an American in reading those letters."

Prayers were given in most Janesville churches on Sunday for the success of the conference on Limiting Armaments, and for clergymen made their sermon topic. Scripture lessons were taken to show the relation of the work of the organized church to a warfare against things which the Divinity hates.

The Rev. Miss Scribner told of the militaristic objects of the church, taking for his text, "Think not that I am come to send peace on the earth; I come not to send peace, but a sword."

Referred to Germany.

Reviewing the after effects of the World war Mr. Scribner in his uncertain terms condemned service men and others, who had opposed the sending of relief to the German people. He spoke in high praise of the deeds of the soldiers—yet held that these United States fought the war against the ideals of the Germans.

"Failure to abolish militarism was held to be the great curse of the recent war."

Sermon in Part.

"If you take the word in its natural meaning certain it is that Jesus Christ was no pacifist. He brought the world the greatest decisive force of his generation; or any generation since. He Himself was fighter His life through. He fought so stubbornly that his enemies killed him, and from the cross He left the fight to his followers," stated Rev. Scribner.

"Early Christianity was a continuing fight. Almost the most exciting thing you could do in those days was to become a Christian. You joined in a fight to death against a degenerate society, its lust, its cruelty and its tyranny."

A Christian War.

"Today the battle is as clear as ever. As long as the world holds what God hates, none has acceptance of Jesus Christ means war. It means war against slavery, child labor, immorality and a host of things we know. Early Christians truly as in the first century, Christ offers a sword in our hand."

"There is a strange 'thrust' about every great war—it is a uniting force as well as a divisive force. Most modern nations have been welded together out of smaller nations by the blows of war. But for the pressure of a common danger without the force of a common cause, within the countries the smaller states would never have been a nation."

"In the presence of a war big enough, men forget their differences and fight shoulder to shoulder."

Only Beat Nation.

"Now Christ's warfare calls to the whole force of his united army. And war between nations means that we, who should by fighting shoulder to shoulder for Him are killing each other instead."

"We must stop fighting each other and take up Christ's battle, or else give up hoping for the Kingdom and release Jesus to the company of beautiful dreamers."

"For one, believe that we honestly entered the World war as a part of Christ's fight. The great body of us were thinking in terms of common foes of humanity—autocracy and militarism and war. The only thing we beat was a nation."

War Against an Idea.

"The only thing we beat was a nation. I'm not minimizing the calamity from which even such a victory saved us. But judged by the mark we set for ourselves, we have 'peace without victory.' We did not end war. We didn't abolish militarism. We didn't make the world safe. These things we must go on fighting for—but we have learned that we must seek them in some other way than the one we just tried."

Hope in Conference.

"Therefore, we are looking with tremendous eagerness toward the conference next month. It will solve our problems. But we may approach it in the spirit of the day on which we took the first step toward the solution. It may give us a breathing space, a chance to lift our heads and look around, to look for our real enemies—ignorance, race prejudices, poverty, unemployment and the rest."

"Not one of these things could stand before us if we could bring against it the sort of fighting spirit we unshamedly exhibited in the days of the revolution. We didn't make the world safe. THE END OF A SOCIALIST REPUBLIC.

With the defeat of the nonpartisan league in North Dakota in the recall election, it may be said that the end of that organization is in sight.

It will pass just as have other political organizations made out of the moment and based on effort to change arithmetic so that 2 and 2 will make 5 instead of 4. The league has but one hope now and that is in Wisconsin with its great agricultural wealth and its place in industry, tenth in the United States. What the nonpartisan league leaders want is a full treasury and opportunity to handle large funds contributed by members.

In return the members get hot air or as in North Dakota, wrecked banks, higher taxes and bankrupt enterprises, capitalized by taxpayers.

But there is also a lesson in the nonpartisan league for the persons and corporations that in the beginning exploited the farmer and caused him to turn to the quick remedy offered by Townley in the futile hope that it would better his condition. The Gazette believes there must be such changes in marketing that the farmer shall not always be the goat as he is right now with high freight rates. The questions are economic and not political and whenever they are treated from the economic viewpoint by organizations bent on a definite end, these questions will be solved, and not until then.

So far as the homecoming is concerned, the U. of W. team was "right to hum."

CAN A GOVERNOR NULLIFY COURT ACTION?

One of the most serious questions in reference to the jurisdiction of the courts, has arisen from the pardoning of Peter Christ by the governor.

Christ was held in contempt by Judge A. H. Reid of the circuit court because Christ had disobeyed a court order in reference to a strike at Threlander, and was sent to the Oneida County jail.

Later Christ was removed to the Langlade county jail at Antigo for safety. Governor Blaine pardoned Christ and sent the papers to the sheriff of Langlade but that sheriff returned the papers to the place of original jurisdiction, Oneida county. Judge Reid ordered that the prisoner be retained by the Oneida sheriff and Governor Blaine counters with the threat of removal of the official. This then is the situation on Monday morning.

Let it be known that the offense for which Christ went to jail was not an offense against the public directly but against the court and the court's authority. It has been a well established principle that the only method of obtaining a review following a contempt sentence was through a writ of habeas corpus. The governor, a board of pardons, or any one else in any state, having the power of pardon or of review of sentence, held no authority to interfere. If the governor had such right and authority the courts would be a mere tool of the pardoning power. One could twiddle his fingers at the court and go to the governor for relief and the court and not the prisoner would be in contempt.

Judge Reid, who by the way, is held in the highest esteem by the bench and bar of the state, both as a jurist of the highest integrity and as a lawyer of character and erudition, has proposed that the matter of jurisdiction be settled by the supreme court through habeas corpus action. But the governor intends to remove the sheriff as he has the power to do, which will settle nothing.

Under the ordinary operation of law and the courts, one of the most common examples of contempt comes from non-support cases. The husband is usually ordered by the court to pay a certain sum to support his family. Refusal or neglect brings him before the court for contempt. The court in this situation has been held solely responsible. But supposing the governor, as in the Christ case, for political reasons or for making capital for himself, should pardon the husband who has refused to support his family and has been sent to jail for contempt? Where would the power of the court be with such a situation? This is parallel and analogous to the case of Christ.

The action of the governor is the gravest assault on the courts we have had in Wisconsin. It removes the power of the court to enforce its own orders, ties its hands and puts a gag in its mouth. The governor has no feeble character to meet in Judge Reid and he cannot browbeat or bluff him. Before it is concluded, the pardon of Peter Christ must take its place as a celebrated case. The reason why Christ was sent to jail, the facts preceding it and his connection with a strike are not factors in this legal side of the

WHY IMITATE EUROPE

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—A composite photograph of a group of minor European diplomats is what the average American young man will look like next spring. If the tailors and the makers of ready-to-wear clothes have their way, as doubtless they will.

It has already been announced that the clothes designers, like all the rest of the world, will descend upon Washington when the armament conference opens, for the express purpose of studying the clothes worn by the delegates and modeling their 1922 offerings after them.

We will be treated to Lloyd George collars and Briand pockets. All European diplomacy will be represented in the spring style books. But the clothes will not really be modeled upon what the great men wear. Whether it is a significant fact or not, great men are very seldom good tailors' models. Briand is anything but dresy, and Lloyd George's trousers seem often to bag at the knees according to the photographs. There is not anything striking about Clemenceau's garb, except that he wears black gloves in the house, a habit which even a European precedent probably would not serve to popularize in this country.

The clothes will really be modeled after those worn by the young striplings who will come over from Europe in various capacities, secretarial, social, and purely ornamental. These imported exquisites will have tasseaux like briars. Their great function will be to drink the oceans of tea and other liquids set forth by Washington hostesses to dance with the debutantes, and possibly to marry a few of the well-endowed ones, thus cementing international alliances and recouping individual European fortunes, as the United States treasure has recouped the national finances of our allies.

Doubtless these European attachés will be very well groomed, and doubtless American youths might do worse than to look like them, but the question surely is legitimate why in this, as in so many other ways, we should be an "imitation of Europe."

Apparently there is no such thing as an American style. The highest recommendation your tailor or haberdasher can give anything is that it is now being worn in London, just as the ladies look to Paris for styles. It is bad enough thus for the whole of male America to be trying desperately to look English while his better half tries to look French, but surely it will be confusing if our daring and original designers are going to try to make us look like the whole continent of Europe all at once, with perhaps an oriental touch thrown in.

It is also curious that a nation which prides itself on its inventiveness and its independence should be content in so many matters to be a mere copy of other nations. For it is not only in matters of clothing, but in manners and customs, in literature and art, we are, or have been, until quite recently, docile followers of British and other European models.

This is still more strange when you take into account the widespread American abhorrence that this is the most perfect country in the world. Recently a part of the American public at least has shown a tendency to tolerate a more critical attitude toward its own land, but in general it has been the American custom to proclaim America a great improvement over Europe in every way.

Imitation is always a confession of a feeling of inferiority. If you feel superior you imitate nobody. Why, then, if we are really so proud of ourselves, to imitate those inferior European nations in so many ways? The American doughboy often came back from Europe sneering at the "frogs" and the "limpies," all too evidently having failed in any genuine appreciation of France and England. Yet he gets back into citizens' clothes that are imitations of English models. More than likely he reads English books, or American books that are imitations of English books. If he goes in for society he encounters English accents and English manners and goes to English teas. Among people who aspire to be considered socially smart, the highest recommendation you can give anything is to call it English. We have bungalows in the English style, and also estates and clubs. In our cookery, on the other hand, we imitate the French, and any hotel which aspires to be considered first class must print at least a part of its menu in a language which scarcely any of its patrons can read.

Rev. J. A. Melrose Writes on "Animal Learning."

Rev. J. A. Melrose of Janesville has contributed to the current number of the Psychological Review, Princeton, a most serious and in some degree revolutionary article on "The Structure of Animal Learning." To the lay mind it may be hard reading, for it logically reaches with inexorable determination and array of psychologically irrefutable principles and arguments the conclusion, which is to clearly objectify the learning process.

The Psychological Review, the leading

It must be said that literature during the past 10 or 15 years, and especially since the war, the United States has made something of a declaration of independence. A whole crew of novelists, poets, and critics have sprung into action who write about American life as they know it, and who are not conspicuously indebted to foreign models for anything in their viewpoint or method.

In architecture, a horrible hodge-podge of all European styles of all ages—Gothic, English manor, Greek classic, and a dozen others. Our furniture must be modeled after that of Louis the Quince or some other European monarch long dead. The nearest thing to an American architecture so far, at all widely used is the so-called Colonial type, and that is really Greek in its origin, the only indigenous type of furniture in the history two-hundred years known as Mission, and it is for the most part ugly.

In architecture, a horrible hodge-podge of all European styles of all ages—Gothic, English manor, Greek classic, and a dozen others. Our furniture must be modeled after that of Louis the Quince or some other European monarch long dead. The nearest thing to an American architecture so far, at all widely used is the so-called Colonial type, and that is really Greek in its origin, the only indigenous type of furniture in the history two-hundred years known as Mission, and it is for the most part ugly.

So our whole country, with its boast of superiority, is in manners, dress, customs, architecture, furniture, food, and to a great extent in its art and its literature, a poor imitation of a great many European models. The only distinctive thing about it in these regards is the jumbled quality which comes of promiscuous imitative ness.

It must be said that literature during the past 10 or 15 years, and especially since the war, the United States has made something of a declaration of independence. A whole crew of novelists, poets, and critics have sprung into action who write about American life as they know it, and who are not conspicuously indebted to foreign models for anything in their viewpoint or method.

JUST FOLKS

BY EDGAR A. GUEST

If I were sending my boy afar,
To live and labor where strangers are,
I should whisper counsel and caution wise,
Telling him things which he ought to know;
I should whisper counsel and caution wise,
Telling him things which he ought to know;

And yet, when I think of him,
I have just one thought arise:

How bitter pain and its cruel strife,
And the sore temptations which men beset,

When your strength gives out and your hope grows dim.

Footville

Footville.—One of the most unique and at the same time one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season was that which took place Friday night with the Loyal Sons' entered with the Loyal Daughters at a Hallowe'en masquerade party in the basement of the Christian church at Footville. The guests numbered about 50 and all the ladies and most of the young men came attired in all sorts of costumes. The basement was artistically and elaborately decorated with owls, bats, jack-o'-lanterns, one block of cotton, Clayton Honeysett the chairman of the decorating committee and he did an excellent job. Came filled the early part of the evening. Partners were chosen for supper by matching bats. Hallowe'en decorations were used on the tables which were lighted by having a wire stretched across them on which were placed electric bulbs. After supper while the guests still sat around the tables lights were turned off and a weird light produced by burning wood alcohol, which gave to each a ghastly and uncanny appearance while ghost stories were told by L. Smith, Wilbur Rose, Art Beyers, Freddie Jones, Daisy Spencer and others. An excellent menu was prepared by Mrs. Tom Mackheron and sister, Miss Edna Goldsmith. This consisted of custard chicken sandwiches, salad with Mayonnaise dressing, doughnuts, pickles, coffee and pumpkin pie with whipped cream. Place cards were of card board on which was written a verse telling the fortune of the guest, on each of these cards was pinned a miniature bat which had these were placed in the center of each place of six. The lights were again turned on and all went to the games where games were played until midnight.

There is Strength in Every Tablet

One dose often helps completely to enrich your blood and revitalizes your worn-out exhausted nerves.—Nuxated Iron is organic iron, like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach. It is so prepared that it will not injure the teeth nor disintegrate the body and yet it has immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood while some physicians claim metallic iron which people usually take is not absorbed at all. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to take the following tablet to help you stay strong and healthy so you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron—three times daily after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Your money will be refunded by the manufacturer if you do not obtain perfectly satisfactory results. All drugs are safe.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative and the best for the liver. It is a strong, instantaneous, little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Cure the liver at the source of the "tooth." Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches "dizzies" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lazy" and "heavy." They "clear" clogged brain and "peck up" the spirits. 10c and 30c.

Blues Rush Monroe Back for 14 to 6 Victory Saturday

Copyright 1920 by Geo. McManus.

Galle's 80-Yd. Run Puts Monroe in Lead but Blues Twice Gather Touchdowns

For the fifth time this season, Janesville high school downed an enemy gridiron squad and kept its record clean. On Saturday, the Blues in a great contest defeated Monroe here, 14 to 6.

On a field of mud and water that made the game slow in the first half, the Blues fought an uphill battle and finally took the lead in the third quarter. For a time it appeared, however, that Monroe was going to have the edge, but a wonderful fighting spirit by the locals forced the Green county visitors to the back of the stage.

Galle Runs 80-Yards.

Other than Janesville's victory, the feature of the day was a remarkable 80-yard run by Quarterback Galle of the visitors for the first touchdown. Stepping through a hole between two men, he legged it straight down the field with both teams strung out in a long line "back of him." Stoltz of Janesville, a former Monroe high school lad, was the only one that seemed able to get anywhere near the fleet sprinter, but even he was too late, being unable to throw Galle until he had crossed the line.

The final half was heart-breaking. The mud surged back and forth across the 20-yard lines of both teams. Janesville sought to break the deadlock through the aerial route only to find a slippery ball and a soggy field interfering. For the most part, the first two quarters were spent in scrapping with punts to lift the ball out of danger. Yet Janesville held the ball in Monroe's territory more often than the Green county lad invaded Blue land.

Stoltz Gains 90 Yards.

Strangely enough, Stoltz, Janesville's left half, was the greatest individual ground gainer of the day. Constantly hammering through Monroe's left tackle with an occasional shift to the right and a few end runs, he made 22 gains for a total of 98 yards. His longest of 18 was not the greatest of the day, but the consistency of his work was a feature.

Knipp's famous passes to Crasper worked only three times, one of them resulting in Janesville's first touch-down in the third quarter and putting the Blues in the lead. The wet weather was the cause of seven of his passes failing, most of them being too high.

Janesville's fighting spirit continued in every moment of the game. Monroe's touch-down only served to put renewed vigor into their attack and stiffened their resolve to make Monroe's poor plug-play work.

Monroe's large bunch of fans had hardly died away when with the ball on the 55-yard line, Knipp managed to get a beautiful pass to Crasper on the 30-yard line. Crasper rushing down the field for touchdown, guarded by McCleusky's splendid interference, Gridley kicked the goal and Janesville got the lead.

Second Touchdown Made.

The last quarter was half over when Janesville got its second touch-down. Changing the ball from Stoltz to Lane for repeated gains through tackle and around end, the Blues placed the pig on Monroe's 2-yard line by a 20-yard run by Lane. Although another pass to Crasper failed when he was tackled on the 10-yard line, Janesville stiffened and by a series of quick pats the "skin" off the line from where it was sent across by line through a hole opened by Young.

The attendance was large for a nasty day. The number of business men attending is gaining at each game and at times they seem to root even harder than the student body.

Both Milton Union teams come here Wednesday for a double header.

Badgers Loom With Chicago as Big 10 Leaders

BIG TEN STANDING.

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Chicago	3	0	.750
Ohio State	2	1	.667
Wisconsin	3	0	1.000
Iowa	2	1	.667
Minnesota	2	2	.500
Michigan	1	1	.500
Indiana	0	1	.000
Purdue	0	2	.000
Illinois	1	0	1.000
Northwestern	0	3	.000

CHICAGO.—Four undefeated Big Ten teams retained their places Saturday in the conference, three by victories over opponents and one by no play. Wisconsin defeated Minnesota; Chicago won from the University of Colorado, and Iowa won from Purdue, while Illinois got no game scheduled.

Big Ten fans are inclined to eliminate Iowa as a possibility and look for a struggle when Chicago, Wisconsin and Ohio State break the three-cornered tie.

Chicago and Ohio began training Monday for their struggle next Saturday, which will mark the first step in the elimination of the larger contenders. Both elevens are well equipped with close and open formations. This game had the best of the season with the possible exception of the Chicago-Wisconsin contest Nov. 14.

Should the Maroons win both the game, this team would have a lead which would make it the inevitable champion.

Wisconsin will rest this weekend, but will meet Michigan Nov. 12. The Wolverines have been eliminated as a championship possibility but should make a good practice session for Wisconsin, allowing it to get into shape to meet Chicago, the following Saturday.

NOTICE: CHAMPS OF IOWA.—Iowa won a 13 to 6 victory over Purdue Saturday. The victory leaves the Hawkeyes an undefeated conference record to far surpass Coach Jones' record of priming his team for the game against Minnesota at Minneapolis Saturday. This game is expected to show Iowa's actual prospects.

Illinois suffered her third defeat Saturday at the hands of Michigan and two more defeats are indicated unless a radical change is made in the team's play. Ohio State and Chicago are the other two opponents for this eleven and both have far outclassed the Illinois team this season.

Northwestern University won its second game of the season Saturday, when it beat the De Paul eleven, a non-conference team 34 to 0.

Notre Dame became the champion of Indiana by taking Indiana University into camp by a score of 28 to 0.
